Skirts are getting lower, but their price isn't.

The first communications merger was probably a woman's sewing circle.

The exact extent of the Great Divide has been determined to be Reno.

Another paradox is that although brevity is the soul of wit, Senators are funny.

The saddest Scotch joke is on the fellow who buys it thinking it is really Scotch.

Now that the tariff lobby has been investigated, it might be well to investigate the tariff bill.

Famous last words: "You wouldn't be jealous of a poor little working girl, would you?"

The idea that space is only a fiction of the brain may be comforting to those seeking a parking place.

We wonder if Filipinos observing "Humiliation Day" longed for the good old times under Spanish rule.

M. Leger is another illustration of the fact that the average man is poor material out of which to make a politician.

When the time comes, an appropriate inscription on the monument to Senator Sheppard might be "He Started Something."

A new fad is to embroider quotations on bed sheets. But market quotations are embroidered upon often keep folks awake.

The problem at London, it seems, is to balance naval strength so nicely that each nation may be certain of winning the next war.

Henry Ford says Woman's place is in the home. But her refusal to stay there has apparently increased the demand for Henry's product.

MARTHA WASHINGTON

The annual recurrence of Washington's Birthday February 22 is always the inspiration of many editorialists and articles on the "father of his country." Occasionally some mention is made of Martha Washington, his devoted wife, but her personality is not as well known as it deserves to be.

Mrs. Washington was the daughter of Col. Daniel, a planter of New Kent County, Virginia, and was the widow of Daniel Parke Custis at the time of her marriage to Washington, on January 6, 1775, being the mother of four children by her first husband.

Two of her children died in infancy, the others being Martha Parke Custis and Col. John Parke Custis, whose granddaughter became the wife of General Robert E. Lee, famed Confederate leader.

Mrs. Washington was short and plump, with hazel eyes and dark hair, her stature being in marked contrast with that of General Washington, who was six feet two inches in height.

She inherited considerable wealth from her first husband and this added to General Washington's fortune made them one of the wealthiest couples in America at the time, their estate being valued at $5,000,000.

George and Martha Washington had no children. Their married life extended over a period of more than 40 years, during which in peace and war, as well as in the exciting days of a president's wife, she was his faithful companion and helpmeet.

As such she is held in affectionate remembrance of the nation.

RADIO'S TOP-NOTCHER

Those who stand at the very top in any profession or activity are always interesting personalities—whether they be movie stars, sport champions, endurance flyers, bathing beauties, or what not.

One of the latest top-notchers to attract wide attention is Hale Barrett Dobbs, who through a recent contract became the world's highest paid radio entertainer, whose salary exceeds that of the President of the United States.

The story of his meteoric rise to fame and fortune reads like a fairy tale, for it was not until four and a half years ago that Dobbs first appeared before the microphone. His first broadcast, known as the health exercise period, was developed into a special program for crippled, convalescent, and other shut-ins, thousands of whom have been cheered by his daily offerings from Pacific Coast radio stations.

The Foundation of Our Country

By Albert T. Reid

Thomas Jefferson, inventor of the modern plowshare, demonstrates his device to George Washington in retirement at Mount Vernon. Washington to Jefferson: "Your plough, neighbor, will complete the work my sword began."

Some time ago his work attracted the attention of E. H. Sanders, an executive of Shell Oil Company, who had the vision to sense the possibility of utilizing the unusual appeal of the Dobbs broadcast more widely and more effectively.

The result was three-year contract for Dobbs which will net him more than a quarter of a million dollars for devoting his talents exclusively to the Shell radio program.

Thus a man of middle age, whose career includes discharge from the Naval Academy for mischievous pranks, surveying in Alaska, teaching physical culture, building playgrounds, dabbling in movie enterprises, selling musical instruments, and other varied activities, becomes radio's premier entertainer—or if his salary is an accurate gauge of his qualifications, it probably is.

In a recent radio address in which fact and humor were delightfully commingled, Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of some medical society, described the "good old days" of 50 years ago. His description of some fashions of the time were both interesting and amusing.

Recalling the baggy, polka-dotted, knee-length and bustles of 19 years ago, reference was also made to an incident which occurred in Lyons, N. Y., in 1850. While trying to fit a customer into a new dress embodying the "asp waist" effect so popular at the time, a dressmaker broke the lady's ribs.

In the homes of the period were seen wax flowers, embroidered mottoes, horseshoe sofas, tatted quilts, "whiskered" adorned with cone shells, korosene lamps, and "family albums" replete with tiny, tiny portraits.

Perhaps those who look back upon us from the vantage point of 50 years hence will find us as behind the folks of 50 years ago.

Brick Brooders

Used In Baldwin

—The home-made brick brooder is popular in popularity among farmers of Baldwin County. A large number have already been built and the total for the season will probably reach 200, reports E. E. Hale, County Agent.

"Farmers are discarding cold, because it is low in original cost, economical to operate and considered more efficient than ordinary brooders in maintaining uniform and ample heat."

Tests with certified Irish potato seed conducted for three years at the University of Tennessee Agricultural Experiment Station resulted in an average yield of 183 bushels per acre. The yields from commercial, uncertified seed grown under the same conditions for three seasons averaged 102 bushels per acre.

Devotional by Rev. Bush pastor of Elba, Sunday afternoon, January 29th, 1930. Mr. Martha Archer ascended to an attack of pneumonia which she had contracted a little more than a week before.

Though she fought it bravely to the last, she had to go. "Come on High," the message came to her and she passed out sweetly into eternity. The place he had prepared for her.

She was at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. N. Harris, near whom she had lived for the past few years.

Funeral services were held in Old Bethlehem Church, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Mitchell officiating, and her remains laid to rest in the cemetery there by her husband, W. H. Archer, who had preceded her by nearly 25 years.

She had one daughter buried near the same spot, five other daughters are Mrs. W. N. Harris and Mrs. J. M. Donaldson. And she leaves a host of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

One of the dearest memories of her that I have is her firm devotion to her Bible. Almost every time I would visit her after I was able to read she would ask me to read the Bible some for her. She said that first called my attention to such passages as "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches and 'Deliver me from lying lips and a deceitful tongue.'"

Her faith in Him was strong. In her sorrow she would give vent to her tears but always reconciled herself in the belief that it was God's will. "His will, not mine," she would say.

She sleeps that last sleep which sooner or later must come to us all. She has been at rest from the day she was born, from which we all must drink; she has paid the price and obtained the rest that never can fade away. No sculptor's tool can construct a monument that will surpass them. We have no doubt that her every aim was to follow in His footsteps as near as she could and to lead others along that way.
